PRINCIPAL'S NEWS

Dear All,
It has been great to have a week in school and get some of the outstanding tasks finished. It really has been very hectic.

Last Week

Congratulations to all the families who took the time to join the Library staff for Story-time last week. The staff reported that there were about 58 visitors which is sensational. It was fantastic to see so many Dads in reading with their littlies. We will look forward to the next one in Term 4.

Assembly

What a wonderful event and run beautifully by the Reception, Year 1 and Year 2 students. Many people commented to me about the efforts of the children when public speaking. It was extra special to be able to celebrate the fine work of all of our SSO staff. Thank-you to the staff for all their encouragement of students and organisation of the assembly and wonderful singing. Congratulations to all award winners, keep up the good work!

Science Week

This week is Science Week. It is always a favourite with our students with loads of "Tricky" things happening around the school. My thanks to the staff, especially Mr Milton, who are on a mission to have lots of fun activities happening in classes and in break times to celebrate Science in our everyday lives.

Camps and Excursions

We seem to be in the midst of an excursion boom. Staff are frantically organising new and exciting experiences for students. We are aware of the pressure on families with many events taking place and trying every means possible to keep the costs down. If you are able to attend any of the excursions or camps it will be greatly appreciated.

Religious Education

This program which occurs once a term will be in the school on the 4th September. The program runs for the Reception to Year 5 students. The "lesson" fills one normal lesson of class time at each year level. This term's theme is "The Good Samaritan". This seems totally apt given the unrest in the world at present. All children attend unless we have a note from you asking that they have an alternative classroom program.

Head-lice

Please see the information inside the newsletter regarding our current small outbreak of these pesky little creatures. To rid ourselves of them it does take commitment and patience. Basically wash everything in sight and out of sight. Use the sun to air bedding and try to encourage children not to share hats, wigs and other dressing up apparel. If you do find nits in your child's hair then the information is there for you to follow.

Regional Director

Our Regional Director, Rowena Fox will be here on Monday bright and early to observe some of our teachers at work. My thanks to the two Michelle's in R-1, to Vicki B and to Ms Porteous for their willingness to put themselves out there.

Coming Up

If you would like an interview with your child's teacher or a particular staff member please advise the school and it will be organised as part of end of term. Reporting is only done for Year 12's this term.

Languages Other Than English

In Week 7 the 1/2 class will be part of a trial to learn Indonesian through Video Conferencing. This is an exciting move forward in what is called Blended Learning. We are hopeful that a number of schools will come on board and this will be a way that we can provide another language and culture to our students.

I hope you have a great week

Kind regards,
Jan Potter

Chemical treatment precautions

Keep treatment preparations away from eyes, nose and mouth. Seek medical advice before use on pregnant or breast-feeding women, infants under two years old or people with sensitive skin.

The wet combing technique can be used as an alternative treatment.

Chemical treatment hints

Do not use hair dryers after applying a treatment preparation. The heat can destroy the active ingredient.

Avoid using hair conditioners (including 2-in-1 shampoo and conditioners, and the wet combing technique) for a day before and after applying chemical treatment preparations. Conditioner can reduce the effectiveness of the treatment.

Removing nits

It is not necessary to remove all nits if they are dead (more than 1-2 cm from the scalp). However, a school community may prefer that nits are removed.

Nits stick very firmly to the hair and can be difficult to remove. Wetting hair with vinegar may help to loosen the nits, which can then be combed out with a headlice comb or picked out by hand.

Treatment failure

The most common reasons for treatment failure are:

- > not following the manufacturer's instructions.
- > the resistance of headlice to the chemical used.
- > not repeating the treatment in 7-10 days (to kill headlice that have hatched from eggs that weren't killed in the first treatment).
- > getting headlice from an untreated person.

If the treatment has not got rid of the headlice

- > if chemical treatment was used, check the instructions and repeat the treatment if they have not been correctly followed (especially the need to repeat in 7-10 days).
- > check the heads of all household members using the 'wet combing' technique (overleaf) and treat all who have headlice (even if they don't feel itchy).
- > try an alternative treatment (check with your chemist to make sure you are choosing a treatment preparation with a different active chemical, as different brands may contain the same chemicals).
- > try the wet combing treatment method.

Preventing the spread

- > avoid direct head-to-head contact.
- > avoid sharing brushes, combs, ribbons, hats, helmets.
- > consider cleaning brushes, combs, towels, pillow cases with hot water and detergent (60°C for 30 seconds).
- > discourage children from playing with each others' hair.
- > keep long hair firmly plaited, or at least tied back – slick down stray hairs with hairspray or gel.
- > brush hair and check for headlice regularly.
- > shaving the head is not necessary.

Headlice

Headlice are social pests and rarely pose a threat to health. Outbreaks can be controlled if parents regularly check their children's hair for headlice and follow the recommended treatment methods if they find active lice.

Headlice facts

- > Headlice only live on human heads.
- > Headlice can live in clean or dirty hair.
- > Headlice are transferred mainly by direct head-to-head contact; rarely by brushes, combs, ribbons, hats etc.
- > Headlice do not carry disease, but bacterial infections can occur from scratching the scalp.
- > Headlice treatments often don't kill 100% of the nits (eggs).
- > Successful treatment does not protect the person from getting more headlice later.

Headlice

- > are small insects (2-4 mm long and about 1 mm wide) with a flat body and six clawed legs, and are pale to dark brown in colour.
- > feed on blood, piercing the scalp several times a day.
- > crawl and do not fly, jump or hop.
- > nymphs (young headlice) take about a week to reach maturity, and live for another 2-3 weeks – each mature female can lay up to eight eggs a day (that's over 150 eggs during a life cycle).

Nits (eggs)

- > are tiny, hard, yellow to white in colour and are attached firmly to the hair shaft close to the scalp.
- > hatch as nymphs after 7-10 days.
- > are probably hatched or dead if more than 1-2 cm from the scalp.
- > may have a 'sandy' or 'gritty' feel when running fingers through the hair.
- > are easier to see than headlice but can be confused with dandruff which is flaky and easy to remove.

Responsibility

It is the responsibility of the parent/guardian to check their child's hair for headlice and to treat for headlice if they are present. It is not the responsibility of school or child care centre staff to check or treat students for headlice.

Parents/guardians may be notified if a staff member believes a child has headlice. The child and other household members should be checked, and if necessary, treatment should begin before the child returns to school.

A school may request a note from the doctor stating that the child has been effectively treated before the child returns to school.

Checking for headlice and nits

Check everyone in the household every week. During headlice outbreaks check each day.

The wet combing technique (overleaf) has been shown to be more reliable than just checking dry hair.

Symptoms may include excessive itching of the scalp especially at the front, nape of the neck, behind the ears, under the fringe, and at the base of plaits and ponytails.

Note: Not all people with headlice will itch.

Treatment

The two most common headlice treatment methods are 'wet combing' and 'chemical' treatment:

- > 'wet combing' involves wetting the hair and scalp liberally with hair conditioner to stun the headlice, then combing the headlice and nits out.
- > 'chemical' treatment uses 'pediculicides' which kill the headlice.

Other treatments such as electric combs, herbal/essential oils and enzyme treatments may also remove headlice, but follow the manufacturer's instructions for best results.

People who suffer from epilepsy, heart disease or have heart pacemakers or other neurostimulator devices should avoid using or handling electric combs.

If there is any adverse reaction to a treatment, seek medical advice.

Wet combing treatment

Wet combing can be used to both check for and treat headlice. You will need hair conditioner (a cheap product is fine, and white conditioner makes headlice easier to see), and a special headlice comb from a chemist. Fine metal combs are recommended. Work under a bright light or sunlight.

Eight step technique

1. Generously apply conditioner to dry hair to completely cover the scalp and the full length of the hair.
2. Untangle the hair with a wide-toothed comb.
3. Put the headlice comb flat against the scalp and draw the comb through each section of hair from the root of the hair to the ends.
4. Wipe the comb after each stroke onto white tissue or kitchen paper, checking each time for headlice and nits.
5. Repeat for every part of the head at least five times.
6. Dispose of tissues in a bin.
7. Wash the hair with warm water and shampoo; rinse thoroughly.
8. Scrub the comb with an old toothbrush in hot soapy water.

If you find live headlice, repeat steps 1-8, two to three times a week for three weeks.

When no more headlice or nits can be found, follow steps 1-8 once a week to keep everyone headlice-free.

Chemical treatment

- > Treatment preparations contain chemicals which can kill headlice and nits (eggs), although not all are effective against nits.
- > Always follow the manufacturer's instructions.
- > It is possible to catch headlice very soon after treatment.
- > Only treat those people who have active headlice but continue to check everyone each day for 7-10 days.
- > Headlice treatment preparations are available from pharmacies without a prescription – they may also be available through schools.
- > Always re-treat 7-10 days after the first treatment to kill any headlice that may have hatched from nits that survived the first treatment.

SIMS FARM

Packed our bags and on the road,
Trip to Sims farm with the excitement mode.
Arrived at our destination and Ned opens the gate,
Pull up in the drive way and see our class mates.

The Cleve year 7s are here for today,
Out they come of the bus and want to stay.
We all sat down to listen to Niel Smith talk,
Than after we did water divining and went for a walk.

Bella tried to use a bobby pin,
But it ended up breaking, so she put it in the bin.
After all that we went to Yeldulknie Weir for a look,
And had some food that mum had cooked.
We went down to the water with every one rock skimming.

It looked so nice I was tempted to go swimming.
Hanging with the Cleve year 7s was so much fun,
And after all that walking it made me go to the dun.

Back in the cars and buses looking at the country side,
Looking at the canola and crops they would be great places to hide.
Were at Miss Hannemanns parent's farm to have a look around,
But mainly to look at the water catcher and is clear not brown.

Mrs Hannemann talked and it was very interesting to hear,
Than after we went sliding down the tarp with no fear.
Our water bottles were empty and I really needed a drink,
So I we went inside and filled up our water bottles from the sink.

Were on the road again on our way to the school
To kick the football on the oval we looked like fools (not really it was fun ha-ha)

Marking and tackling is what I like to do,
All my friends having fun and the boy's speckying too.
It's was time to say good bye to the year sevens. I didn't want to leave,
Because all the girls in the car carried on saying "Steve, Steve."

Back at Sims Farm again, starting to stoke the fire
Watching the logs catch a light and the flames rising higher.

Out in the bush to find a stick,
Marshmallow cooking they come out thick.
Spaghetti bog for tea and can't wait to eat it,
People getting it ready and I think one is Britt.

We all sat down at the table with such good manners,
While the other adults sitting on the other table looking like Nannas!

Tea was finished and it was time for dessert,
And with Tahlia and Ned cooking, you might get hurt.
All sitting around the fire telling weird and funny things,
Ned had got bitten by something and said that it stings.

11 o'clock and we are now in bed,
Meant to be going to sleep but we talked instead.
Later on we're fast asleep.

Waking up in the morning, hearing the sheep.
Back at the Weir, ready to go running
Getting fit for netball and football and we were puffing.

After all that we had some lunch.
All sitting around like a crazy bunch.
Playing marks up is one of my favourite games to play,
I love it so much we played it every day.

It was now the end of our sleepover to Sims farm and I have had a lot of fun.

And in only a few days we got a lot done.

Going home and we are all really tired.

Slowly closing our eyes is hard to hide.

Last Tuesday night we had our Reading Hour which was a simultaneous event across the country. It is a part of an initiative to encourage parents and grandparents to read to child for at least 10 minutes a day.

We invited children from Kindy and Reception through to Year 5 to attend with their parents and share stories and activities with us. We were delighted to see more than 50 people in the library that night and from all the wonderful feedback have decided it will not be a one off event.

Thank you to everyone who shared the night with us.
